2008 SLMS/NYLA LEADERSHIP RETREAT

Standards for the 21st Century Learner: Ready! Set! Action!

Gail Dickinson &
Barbara Stripling

*Cornell University, Ithaca,
Aug. 4-5*

Mon.: 8AM till 10 PM

Tues.: 8AM till 12 PM

Get Ready! to implement the new AASL standards, Standards for the 21st Century Learner, by tapping into your underlying beliefs about the role of the library in empowering all of your students to learn, looking at the structure of the new standards, and seeing models of the standards in action.

Get Set! to teach with the standards in mind by revising one of your current lessons/units (or creating a new lesson/unit) to integrate the new standards and developing assessments that allow students to demonstrate their abilities.

Plan your Action! to implement the new standards and win the hearts and minds of those around you in order to lead all students to successful 21st century learning through the library.

Please bring current lessons/units to work on at this session.

Sunday night dinner will be at local restaurants. See a list of restaurants on the SLMS website www.nyla.org/slms

Accommodations?

We will all stay in the Mews dorm, which is close to the new meeting room complex. Both buildings are a short walk from the Purcell Conference Center dining hall. The dorm rooms accommodate two people; each room has air conditioning; three rooms share a bathroom that is well-designed for privacy.

What to Bring?

This is an informal gathering. Shorts, capris, jeans and your favorite library t-shirts are appropriate. Bring a sweatshirt or sweater for cool nights and an umbrella for rainy days. We will have access to Cornell's exercise facilities and pool. You may also want to bring good walking shoes as Ithaca and Cornell have many places to explore.
