“Connecting Cultures: Ethnic Services in the Libraries of New York State is possibly the most important work of library scholarship I’ve encountered. Beautifully written and conceived.”

—Gary Shteyngart, Novelist. Author of The Russian Debutante’s Handbook, Absurdistan, Super Sad True Love Story, and Little Failure (memoir)

“Connecting Cultures illustrates in concrete and exciting ways how library staff members that reach out to and connect with the communities they serve can develop programs that capture and captivate their multicultural communities. Here you have a road map for how your library can do the same thing.”

—Yolanda J. Cuesta, M.L.S., from Foreword

CONNECTING CULTURES: ETHNIC SERVICES IN THE LIBRARIES OF NEW YORK STATE
A COLLECTION OF THIRTY ESSAYS ON THE TOPIC OF MULTICULTURAL SERVICES
Editors: Irina A. Kuharets, Brigid A. Cahalan, Fred J. Gitner

This book describes experiences of New York State librarians since 2001, and showcases exemplary library services to African Americans, Afghans, Bangladeshis, Chinese, Russians, and Spanish speakers, as well as Irish, Hasidic and Orthodox Jewish communities, and others. The essays describe library programs for children, young adults and adults, and will inspire and guide library staff in serving ethnic populations. This publication is appropriate for professional collections, library schools, and any librarian seeking to improve library services to multicultural communities.
